Meeting with Serbia's President Aleksandar Vučić - "Serbia's path must be a European one!"

Today, Adis Ahmetovic, Member of the German Bundestag, Member of the Foreign Affairs Committee and Chief Rapporteur on the Western Balkans, met with Serbian President Aleksandar Vučić in Belgrade. In the 45-minute conversation, the two exchanged views on the close bilateral relations between Germany and Serbia and on the prospect of EU accession.

"Bilateral relations between Germany and Serbia remain close and based on trust. In addition, Serbia has made great economic progress in recent years and has become a center of science. This also makes the country an important engine for the region. However, this also comes with responsibilities and expectations. Serbia has the great and important task of proactively contributing to the stabilization of the region and building or supporting bridges of understanding. In addition to EU integration, cooperation with neighboring states and regional stability are also important cornerstones to ensure stability and progress in the Western Balkans region," said Adis Ahmetovic, member of the German Bundestag, after the talks with the Serbian President.

"I would like to support Serbia in this endeavor. I am very interested in a further close, resilient and trusting bilateral relationship between Serbia and Germany. At the top of the agenda are further EU integration and a reliable EU accession perspective," Ahmetovic stressed. But this also includes a comprehensive normalization of relations between Serbia and Kosovo. Only when this has been finally clarified is it prospectively possible for both states to join the EU.

After the meeting with Serbian President Aleksandar Vučić, today's agenda includes a discussion on the situation of Roma in Serbia and further talks with representatives of the Foreign Affairs Committee and the Committee on EU Integration as well as with opposition politicians.

Member of the Bundestag Adis Ahmetovic is on his foreign trip to the Western Balkans region until Sunday. After his visit to Serbia, Ahmetovic will travel on to Bosnia and Herzegovina.
