„Supporting Bosnia and Herzegovina as it embarks on a better future“ – „Traffic light“ parliamentary groups submit motion to the Bundestag

The parliamentary groups of the SPD, Bündnis 90/Die Grünen and the FDP have passed the motion "Supporting Bosnia and Herzegovina as it embarks on a better future". The joint motion of the governing coalitions, which was initiated by the SPD members of parliament Adis Ahmetovic and Dietmar Nietan together with Boris Mijatović (Greens) and Thomas Hacker (FDP), is now to find its way into parliament. In 22 points, the motion calls on the German government to, among other things, advocate strongly in the EU for sanctions against targeted individuals and institutions in close coordination with the United States and the United Kingdom, to actively continue the "Berlin Process," and to consider renewed support for German forces in Operation EUFOR Althea.

"The motion passed by the parliamentary groups is an important milestone for the stabilization of the Western Balkans and thus for the security of Europe. We are thereby acknowledging our historic and European responsibility for securing peace, stability and strengthening of the region, especially in Bosnia and Herzegovina. We are taking targeted action against the individuals and institutions that - as has also become clear in recent days - are working on further destabilization as well as secession and are thus blocking the path to a better future for the people in the region," said the SPD foreign policy expert, Adis Ahmetovic. He added: "The governing parties remain steadfast and will stick to democratic and European principles. We will not be irritated by verbal attacks from ethno nationalists. Our position is clear, we stand firmly together."

The motion "Supporting Bosnia and Herzegovina as it embarks on a better future" is to be debated and passed in the Bundestag committees next month.
